A screenshot of a Windows sign-in dialog box. At the top, it says "Stay signed in to all your apps". Below this is a paragraph: "Windows will remember your account and automatically sign you in to your apps and websites on this device. This will reduce the number of times you are asked to login." There is a checked checkbox with a red arrow pointing to it and the word "UNCHECK" in large red letters. Below the checkbox is the text "Allow my organization to manage my device". Further down, there is a small icon and a paragraph: "Selecting this option means your administrator can install apps, control settings, and reset your device remotely. Your organization may require you to enable this option to access data and apps on this device." At the bottom left, there is a link that says "No, sign in to this app only". At the bottom right, there is a blue button labeled "OK".

Or

Selecting Yes, all apps will:

- Allow us to use your work or school account to sign you in to other desktop apps and websites you use on this device.
- Register this device with your organization, allowing your organization to view device information like the device's name.

Your organization also needs to manage this device to access some enterprise resources. Allowing this will enable your IT admin to perform various operations remotely like controlling settings, installing apps, and resetting this device.
